

This Week at Skills Up !!!

Lots of ICT skills this week, when we finished off our 'All About Me' presentations. Clients have worked hard, over a number of weeks, to add lots of features to them. We had talked about how to make them more attractive to the viewer and looked at ways to add animations, transitions and sound to them. Clients increased in confidence doing this and were eager to watch each other's. They had the idea of doing further presentations to share something they are interested in so we will practise and develop our skills again.

We completed a community task this week, with a festive theme. Each client was given another person in the group to buy a present for in a budget. We planned where we would go to look and talked about how we could get there, clients helping with directions. We really tried to consider the person we were buying for and checked throughout that we stayed in our budget. It was a good opportunity to practise safety outside as well as our social skills in the community. We even met a friend and had a good chat, explaining what our task was. We were impressed with how clients worked out the money and paid themselves. What will the gifts will be?

It's great to see each week how clients are really taking on board the things we are working on and improving their skills. Keep it up!
